

Is there life after Apex???

Of course there is family, work and all those other things that continue on however what happens when you want to move on, but you want still want to enjoy the fellowship of Apex without the sausage sizzles.

Well there IS life after Apex and its called Apex 40!!

We hope you have heard about it but if not it was started in the 70's by some Melbourne Apexian's who had reached the magic age of 40 (yes 40 was the age then) who wanted "continued fellowship" after they were booted out and so Apex 40 was born.

You can discover much more about Apex 40, its history, membership and social activities at www.apex40.com

So what are my options to join??

- Join one of the existing groups and you can see those listed on the website. The existing groups tend to have an older membership than 45, so if this doesn't suit why not start your own group, perhaps one that either caters for your own town OR perhaps a larger area like an old district.
- By the way we also have a membership category for those that are remote, it's called "Member at Large", so if you don't live near a group OR are in an area where a group could be started then this will be for you.
- Don't worry, if you decide to establish your own area group there's little to no work to do (other than organising the get together times / venue in your area) once the group is established. There's no erroneous paperwork, or having to run and balance accounts, really in an administrative sense all you have to do is collect the $6 annual fees per person, provide the members details to the Apex National Board and bank the money each year into our account (most of the costs are for insurance).

The future of Apex 40

Apex 40 is doing well, but our members are aging and to be truthful we haven't exactly excelled in the past decade or so in getting the younger brigade to join and so Apex 40 needs YOU and soon, and to be honest not only you but a lot of other 45 year olds (and a bit over) as well. If we can expand the membership to include a large number of younger men and women then Apex 40 can thrive for many years to come and the fun and enjoyment of Apex can last a lifetime.

Come on guys and girls, take the plunge, join today and let the good times roll on!!
